The Cities Service Stapleton No. 1 Discovery

Reams have been written about the Cities Service Stapleton No. 1 discovery that wrote oil into Kansas' vital industrial history. But of this patriarch of Kansas discoveries dating back to October 15, 1916, this can be said in summary:

This oil discovery that refused to die is the well that put Kansas on the oil maps.

It opened a vast oilfield that has contributed mightily to the winning of three fighting wars and to national industrial growth over almost fifty years.

Drilled on faith in the industry's first widespread geologic survey, the Stapleton No. 1 brought professional recognition and stature to the new profession of petroleum geology.

The field discovered by the Stapleton No. 1 has been the training ground for geologists, production and conservation engineers. And, out of the field have come pioneering developments recognized and practiced throughout the industry.

Staff and Administration

Faculty

Edwin J. Walbourn, who has served as assistant dean and then dean of the El Dorado Junior College since 1960, was named President of the newly created Butler County Junior College on October 28, as one of the first official acts of the newly appointed Board of Regents. To Mr. Walbourn should go much credit for the dissemination of information concerning the purpose of the junior college in the contemporary educational program. He served as a consultant for many groups who sought to inform themselves about our school and its place in the community, prior to the county election which changed the El Dorado Junior College into the Butler County Junior College.

The Augusta Mobil refinery, one of several refineries of the Mobil Oil Company, a division of Socony Mobil Oil Company, Inc., has been operating for over forty-six years, having started operation on April 1, 1917.

The refinery occupies approximately 350 acres and has facilities for processing 45,000 barrels per day.

Refining operations include crude distillation, vacuum reduction, thermal cracking, TCC (catalytic cracking), hydrofluoric acid alkylation, and catalytic reforming.

Many products are manufactured and shipped, including liquefied petroleum gases, jet fuels, aviation gasolines, motor gasolines, solvents, kerosenes, heating and diesel fuels, heavy oils, road asphalts, and special asphaltic products.

Approximately 350 people are employed at the refinery. They bring together a variety of skills, each dependent on the others, in processing crude oil to finished products.

The Augusta Mobil Refinery has given nearly half a century to the oil industry in Butler County.

Fluid Catalytic Cracking Unit at American Petrofina Refinery

Organized in 1916, less than a year after the Stapleton Strike and operated then as the El Dorado Refining Company, the American Petrofina Refinery had a humble beginning. The first plant consisted of three second-hand boilers purchased for $40, a small pipe still, and a few pumps and tanks. Even so, it shipped its first car of gasoline on October 26, 1916, and handled 600 barrels of oil per day with seven employees and a payroll of $725 a month.

American Petrofina acquired the refinery in 1958. Today it is as modern as one will find in the country. It has a capacity of 20,000 barrels per day with 160 employees and a $900,000 per annum payroll.

The company, with its long years of operation in Butler County, has made an important contribution to the oil industry within the county. At the same time officers of the company point out that many of its present and past officers and personnel have attended the local junior college.

The Hydrotreater towers over the Udex-cumene plant in Skelly's new Petro-Chemical Division.

An independent Oil operator named W. G. Skelly completed the Stapleton No. 1 well in the El Dorado field in 1915. He and associates immediately saw the need for a refinery and purchased 88 acres of land.

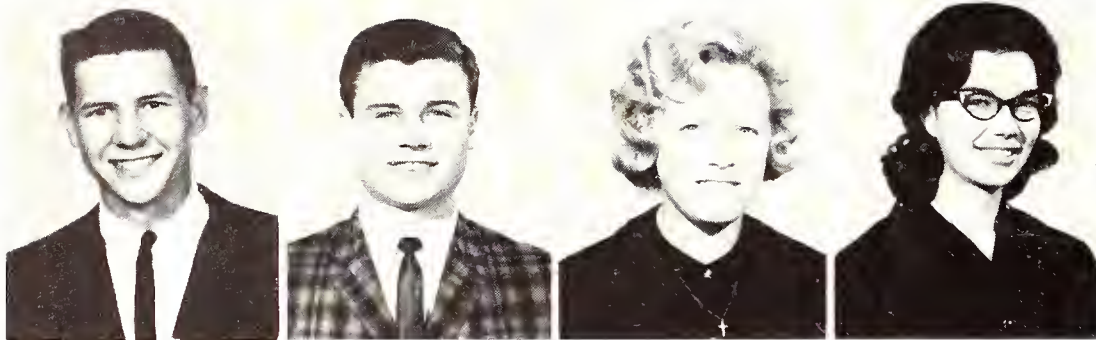

The Midland Refining Company, formed by Skelly and others, finished its first still in July, 1917, processing crude from the Frank Allen lease, just west of the refinery.

Seven stills of 160-barrel capacity each, two batch agitators, a boiler house, a pump house, and maintenance shops were manned by a staff of less than 40.

Skelly Oil Company was incorporated in October, 1919, as a producing refinery actively co-ordinated with an ambitious marketing and sales program. Today, after 45 years, 48,000 barrels of crude oil are processed daily by a staff of 568 men. The El Dorado plant is one of the most modern refineries and petro-chemical plants in the Middle West.

Butler County has felt the impact of Skelly business through the years. The first Skelly service station was opened in El Dorado. Between 1,500 and 2,000 residents of El Dorado are either Skelly employees or members of Skelly families, and many retired veterans still reside within the county.

The Augusta Historical Museum.

The Conner Cabin, El Dorado.

Two of the oldest structures still standing in Butler County are log cabins, mute reminders of the simple buildings of the early settlers. One, standing on its original site in Augusta, was built in 1868. In its early days it housed, at various times, a store, the post office, the Baptist and Methodist religious meetings, the public school, and the Masonic lodge. In 1941 the Augusta Historical Society, under the direction of Stella B. Haines, restored the cabin to its earlier state and presented the cabin to the city of Augusta as a historical museum.

Another is the Conner Cabin, thought by some to be the first cabin built in the county at some time prior to 1858 by William Hildebrand, first permanent settler of the county. It was later acquired "by purchase" by Jerry Conner, who used it as a kitchen attached to his store and a half log home. Because Mr. Conner was a leader in early county affairs, the cabin is associated with many early historical events. The Conner Cabin now stands in East Park, El Dorado.

The present Butler County courthouse, located between Gordy and Star Streets and between Central Avenue and Pine Street, was completed in September of 1909 at the cost of $100,000. It replaced a building located on the corner of West Central and Gordy Street. Several business buildings were removed from the block to make room for the new courthouse. The jail was housed in the basement of the courthouse until separate accommodations were provided at the corner of Star and Pine Streets. Rearrangement of rooms has been made on several occasions to meet the demands of the changing times. The outside of the building has seen little change through the years. The clock has become for the passing citizen the guide by day and by night; and its light by night illuminates the statue, the Goddess of Justice, giving attention to the significant purpose of our democratic way of life.
